

They say that newspapers, which such a good job of selling the other fellow on the merits of advertising, aren't so good when peaking up for themselves.

Publication in another column of this page of Hope's 1950 retail sales figures, taken from Consumer Markets, reminds me of something expensive we once did for Hope — and I don't believe we ever said a word about it in our own paper.

Consumer Markets is the annual publication of Standard Rate & Data Service, Inc., Chicago. The main publication of SRDS, however, is its monthly listing of advertising rates and promotions of all the leading newspapers, magazines, radio and television stations, of the United States and Canada.

Back in 1950 The Star ran six ads in Standard Rate 1 Data, telling about this newspaper, its city and its territory.

The ads were in color.
Expensive?

Well, I'll tell you: We only planned on running three of 'em — but there were six insertions before we could get the thing stopped.

One thousand dollars.
We paid it. But part of our hide is nailed to the front door of a Chicago office building.

The January 26 edition of Wall Street Journal, national business paper, reports that "Federal Prophets Who Feared Price Runaway Now Talk of a Slide." More of the same headline reads like this:
"Think Defense Effort Impact Was Overestimated; One Sees 'Shake-
Out' in '53'."

I gather from the story that some important people in Washington now feel that their experts made a mistake — possibly price and wage controls never were really needed, and may be abolished suddenly in the face of a growing depression threat.

The general business picture in America today is somewhat mixed.
Retail sales from coast to coast are running behind 1951, owing to a second outbreak of war-scare buying last January and February — but sales are even with or better than 1950. But there is trouble in appliance and other trade manufacturing lines, where supply has outstripped demand, and the textile industry is said by its spokesmen to be in the worst shape in 33 years, some mills closed down entirely and many others running part-time. Only in the heavy metals is there scarcity, and the backlog of orders for these may be caught up with late this year.

This is a far cry from the runaway inflation that the government planners pictured for us only a year ago. Somebody made a pretty bad guess.

And that "somebody" was an expert doing his experting not for private business but for the great and inflexible machine known as the federal government.

Paraphrasing the old definition:
Today's expert is just somebody away from home doing a job in Washington.

For such monumental bad guessing in private business he would be yanked off the job.

The magic of inflexible government is turning pale.

I am reminded of a cartoon in
The New Yorker's 25-Year Album:
The year is 1928 and a presidential election is coming up. The cartoon shows some tough-looking dock-workers holding a caucus.
Says one: "This guy Smith may be 'I right' — but me, I'll vote for Prosperity."

The next year, 1929, was the one that broke the Republicans — and the country.

Hope's Annual Retail Sales 13 Millions

Hope's retail sales for 1950 totaled an estimated $12,773,000 according to Consumer Markets, 1951-52 edition, published by Standard Rate & Data Service, Inc., Chicago, the nationally recognized authority on newspaper, magazine, and radio advertising rates and market data.

Standard Rate & Data publishes advertising rates and local market data every month, but issues Consumer Markets as an annual volume selling at $10 per copy.

The 1950 estimate on total retail sales for Hope compares with the federal Census Bureau's report of $11,930,000 for 1948 — and $9,903,- 000 for 1940.

For 1951 Consumer Markets estimates Hope had 2,910 households, against the census report of 2,898 in 1950, and 2,104 in 1940. The CM report estimates that of the 2,910 households existing in 1951 a total of 2,350 had radios.

CM figures that Hope retail sales per household in 1950 averaged $4,389 — or $1,485 per capita.
Breakdown on CM's estimated $12,773,000 retail sales for 1950 shows the following total by classifications (partial list):

Food stores $2,693,000.
General merchandise $1,274,000.
Apparel stores $693,000.
Filling stations $494,000.
Eating and drinking $211,000.

Truman Tax Shakeup Plan Is Opposed

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP) — President Truman's plan to reorganize the Internal Revenue Bureau today faced powerful bi-partisan opposition in the Senate.

Senators George (D-Ga.) and Mil-likin (D-Colo.) late yesterday introduced a resolution asking the Senate to kill the plan. The House has approved the reorganization.
George is chairman of the finance committee which handles all tax legislation. Millikin is the ranking Republican on the committee and is chairman of the conference of all GOP senators.

Their resolution is certain to get floor consideration before the March 14 deadline. If the Senate does not vote it down by then, the program goes into effect automatically on that date.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.) of the expenditures committee, to which the disapproval measure was sent, told newsmen his group would vote on it early next week.

McClellan himself is opposed to the President's plan. He introduced yesterday a bill which would give the Treasury the right to set up the same kind of organization in the Internal Revenue agency that Mr. Truman's proposal authorizes.

Junior Play Is Guaranteed to Furnish Laughs

"The Whiz Kids," a comedy in 3 acts to be given at the High School auditorium on March 7, goes from one ridiculous situation to another.

The Kingsley family is constantly in an uproar over the antics of the twins, Buck and Bunny, who attempt to discourage all the suitors of their mother and uncle.

They stop at nothing from putting fleas and ticks in the chairs to pouring buckets of water on the unwanted guests.

The ghost that supposedly haunts the house is just another tool in the twins' hands to scare the wits out of the whole household, to say nothing of the fright it brings to the negro servants, Colonial and American.

Ushers for the play will be Patsy Samuels, Luc Green, Evelyn Vess, Patricia Bearden, Katie Lester, Wanda Cox, Margie Wilson, Gladys
Womack, Iris Nell Roberts, Ava Honeycutt, Iris Jean Byers, Francis Shearer, Donna Russell and Norma Jean Cox.

Body of Rosston Soldier to Be Returned

A military service will be held at Union Baptist Church of Ros-ston by the Rev. Floyd Clark. Arrangements are incomplete.

He is survived by his parents,
Mr. and Mrs. Sid A. Richardson, of Rosston, six sisters, Mrs. Taylor Dew of Memphis, Mrs. Tottie Phillips of Memphis, Mrs. W. G. Edwards, Harold Wallace and Mrs. Clifton
Beale of Memphis, one brother,

Wants Ike to Come Home, Help Plan

By The Associated Press
A Dixie senator said today he thinks a "non-political" trip home by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower would help the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in its study of U. S. aid to Europe — and he hopes the group will invite him soon.

Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.) said he is not trying to entangle Eisenhower in a political situation.

But, he said, the general's views on how much Congress should vote this year to aid Western Europe would be helpful because "he knows more about the situation than any other man." President Truman is expected to ask for about $7,000,000,000 to continue foreign military and economic aid another year.

Senator Brewster (R-Mo.), who is supporting Senator Taft of Ohio for the Republican presidential nomination, said Eisenhower's testimony might help, but he didn't think his return at this time could be "divorced from the presidential political picture."

Eisenhower has said he would accept the GOP nomination but won't seek it. His backers openly have said they would like to have him come home before the July Chicago convention to bolster their drive for his nomination.

Meanwhile conflicting claims of strength came from both Taft and Eisenhower backers.

Fifteen Eisenhower — for-president leaders from 11 Southern States organized in Washington yesterday and said for the first time in history the South is ready to get Republican in November if Eisenhower wins the nomination.

David S. Ingalls, a Taft campaign manager, issued a statement taking exception to one by Senator Lodge (R-Mass.), national director of the Eisenhower campaign, that the general's convention delegate strength is growing in the Midwest.

Ingalls said if there is any such upsurge "it has probably been the best kept secret of the campaign."

What Actually Is Keeping the Common Man Common Is Little Thing Called the Common Cold

By HAL BOYLE
New York, Feb. 28 (AP) — What keeps the common man common is the common cold.

Death is the final leveler but the common cold in life is the greatest equalizer.

It is the most democratic of diseases, creeping with equal impartiality into the nostrils of the aristocratic and the bronchial tubes of the most lowly.

The common cold links us all in a fine mortality, a brotherhood of susceptibility. Like money it is a medium of exchange. The cold can't lower his celebrated Iron Curtain on this invisible bond that joins all mankind.

Yes, one "kerchew" makes the whole world kin.

Like love, the common cold is caused by a non-filterable virus.
And as in the case of love, people rail against its torments, but secretly enjoy them. Again, like love, it can really be cured only by the passage of time.

So many wonder drugs have been developed to defeat the common cold it is a wonder one of them doesn't really work.

Sen. Russell Is Candidate for Nomination

Washington, Feb. 28 (UP) — Southern Democrats expected Sen.
Richard B. Russell of Georgia to say "yes" today to mounting demands from the South that he become a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

They did not expect him—at least at this time—to go all the way and announce his willingness to tag a Southern third party if one should be formed during the 1952 campaign.

Russell agreed to meet with a delegation representing the Democratic state committee in his home state. The group bore a formal request that he make himself available for the presidential nomination.

On the eve of the meeting Russell would not say that he would give a definite answer today even though many fellow — Democrats were sure he would.

He was under pressure to give an early answer, particularly to Florida supporters who want him in the May 27 presidential primary in that state. The deadline for filing is March 15.

A Florida delegation headed by state Democratic Chairman Frank Upchurch was scheduled to confer with Russell later today.

A slate of pro-Russell candidates for delegate seats at the national convention is now forming in Florida. Informants in Florida con-

McMath Hints He Will Run for 3rd Term

North Little Rock Feb. 28 (AP)— Gov. McMath has served notice that he will accept a "draft" to run for a third term.

In an address at a meeting of the Brotherhood of Railroad Train-men here last night, the governor said:

"I may not announce for a third term, but if as many as three people ask me to I'll feel that I'm drafted and it is my duty to run."

McMath made this statement in introducing W. P. Kennedy, national president of the brotherhood.
When Kennedy spoke, he told his audience, "when the governor announces he will be a candidate for re-election, labor will get behind him and return him to office where he belongs."

McMath lashed out at his foes in the 1951 general assembly, and also hinted that he had "a great story" to tell about the State Highway Audit Commission — investigators of the State Highway Department.

"After the legislature quit, they left me the Highway Audit Commission for my entertainment," he said. "There is a great story behind the HAC and I'll be there to tell it to you at the proper time."

In all honesty some government ought to strike a medal honoring the common cold for service to the human race "above and beyond the call of duty." For it is a beneficent malady, an alarm clock to warn you to put yourself in better health.

A common cold sets a man apart. The first warnings — a watery eye, a rheumy throat, a sneeze — confer upon him distinction, attention, sympathy. These things a man has to have or else life doesn't seem worth while.

Without a cold he is just somebody, one more cipher amid the official zeroes. With a cold he is immediately a person of importance. The boss tells him kindly to "go home and take it easy." His wife wears a ring in the floor by his sickbed, bringing him pleasant food and wondrous drugs.

During this drama of convalescence the patient escapes all daily cares, catches up on his rest, and returns looking so cheerful the boss decides, "I think I've got a cold too." So he goes home to bed, and one after the other, the rest of the office staff does the same thing.

This is such normal practice in most offices today a sneak is defined as "somebody who tries to catch a cold before it's his turn."
In the better run offices winter colds by an unwritten rule are now granted on the principle of sincerity, just like vacations.

That, of course, is just what a common cold is — a vacation from reality. And if any doctor ever discovers a one-day sure cure for a cold he had better keep it to himself or the race of man will wish the medicine brought to him by an immortal angel.

Communists Gain Ground in India Vote

New Delhi, India, Feb. 28 (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru declared today that despite Left Wing gains in the recent election he is convinced that for India Communism would be injurious.

At his first news conference since the end of India's national elections, Nehru said the general policies of the Communists are conditioned by factors which do not extra territorial. That I do not like."

Nehru's Congress party won an overwhelming majority in the National Parliament, with the Communists placing third behind various independent factions. But the Reds gained surprising strength in state legislatures in big and important sections of southern India and West Bengal.

Nehru had an explanation for this: "We won because we had many fine workers. Where we didn't work, we lost."

The prime minister said that
"unthinking applause and unthinking denunciation of Communism is equally bad. It depends on tactics of the Communist party in the particular country."

"My difficulty is that I know something about Communism and most people don't. You frequently have to talk about this subject to people who know nothing about it."

Nehru viewed the doctrine of Karl Marx as "out of date today — to talk about him is reactionary.
Communists with all their fire and fury are in their outlook and some-ways reactionary."

Nehru said the Congress party welcomed support of other parties in building India, but omitted any mention of the Communists, whose practices he described as "disruptive to the very ideals they put forward."

Nehru covered a host of other subjects at his conference. They included:

U. S. aid to India — "We are having no difficulty with the United States. We are getting on very well indeed."

Communist China — He would like to visit Communist China "sometime" but not in the very near future. "An informal invitation has been extended by Peking. India has been unable to purchase rice from there. Asked if he might try to get rice from the Nationalist government in Formosa, he replied: "We will get rice where we can get it — even from the moon."

Ex-Purchasing Agent Gets Racing Job

Little Rock, Feb. 28 (AP) — John K. Brown, former state purchasing agent who resigned during the Highway Audit Commission's recent public hearings, is working at Oklahoma Park.

Brown's name was included in a list of employees recommended to the track by the State Racing Commission. The list was released yesterday by Carl F. Parker, state revenue commissioner.

Brown, a star witness in the HAC's investigation of the State Highway Department which he once served as purchasing agent, is employed as a $15-a-day part-time auditor at the track.

The appearances of Brown on the witness stand at the HAC's hearings were characterized by his inability to remember details of many department transactions. He testified, among other things, that he had received and solicited campaign contributions for Gov. Mc-Math from vendors of materials to the state.

Fulbright Leads Opposition to Labor Dept. Move That Threatens Industry in South

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP) — A group of southern congressmen is opposing what they say is a Labor Department threat to industrial expansion in the south.

Sen. Fulbright and Rep. Hays, Arkansas Democrats, said they are seeking to block a possibility the Labor Department will establish the prevailing wage scale for the incandescent lamp industry on a nation-wide, rather than on a regional basis.

Secretary of Labor Tobin and his aides now have the matter under study, and have promised a public hearing before a final ruling is made, Hays said.

The situation Fulbright and Hays told a reporter, is this:
The Walsh-Henley Act, provides that any concern obtaining a contract with the government should pay the wage scale prevailing in the industry.

The intent of Congress," Fulbright said, "was to prevent government contracts from going to the so-called 'sweat shops.' My view is that the Labor Department is ignoring the intent of Congress by ignoring the language of the law."

"The department is taking the view that the prevailing wage for an industry means the wage of that industry on a nation-wide basis. I think the purpose of the law was to have the department look at an industry in a certain area and apply the prevailing wage to that area."

The Arkansas, together with several other southerners and officials of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, carried the matter to Secretary Tobin this week.

The matter affects Westinghouse which operates a light bulb plant at Little Rock and is proposing to build another at Hot Springs.

Both Hays and Fulbright said they fear that if the Labor Department view is actually applied industries may cease to expand in the south since one southern advantage is a lower general wage pattern.

"I think maybe one of Tobin's motives is to try to maintain the present industrial pattern of New England and prevent the growth of competition," Fulbright said.

Allied Planes Knock Out Key Bridge

8th Army Headquarters, Korea, Feb. 28 — (UP) — Allied fighter-bombers making "every bomb count" knocked out a 250-foot bridge today in North Central Korea and damaged two other spans in pounding Communist supply routes.

F-86 Sabrejets patrolled "Mig Alley" without raising a challenge from Communist fighter planes, and Allied F-85 Thunderjets, F-80 Shooting Stars and Marine Corsairs cut main rail lines in more than 120 places.

Other United Nations bombers attacked 1,198 enemy supply vehicles during the night and destroyed 112 of them.

On the ground, a Communist platoon probed U. N. positions south of Panmunjom in the most significant action of the day.

Capt. Robert H. Durris of Tulsa, Okla., led the successful attack on the big steel and concrete span near Huicheon.

"We came in low and dropped our 1,000-pound bombs right down the middle of the bridge," Durris said. "We made every one of the bombs count."

"When the ties and rails stopped spinning round and settled down, I counted three big holes in the bridge — one right in the middle and one at either end," he said.

Indian Bureau to Get Truck Seized Carrying Liquor

Texarkana — The Indian Bureau of Muskogee, Okla., is getting a 1940 one and a half ton truck the government confiscated, under an order issued Wednesday in federal court.

Federal Judge Harry J. Lemley ordered the truck turned over to the general services administration for the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

The truck was seized by alcohol tax unit agents several weeks ago when State Policeman Louie Hilton arrested Glen H. Irvin, Hot Springs near Prescott. A large quantity of moonshine liquor was on the truck which Irvin was driving and the state officer called in alcohol tax agents and turned the truck and Irvin over to them.

U. S. Men to Stay in Japan Indefinitely

Tokyo, Feb. 28 (AP) — Diplomats signed an agreement today providing that American troops will stay the same terms as exist now.

No limit was set on the size or composition of U. S. post-occupation forces. No time limit was set on the length of their stay.

18 Parachute to Safety in Blizzard

Sydney, N. C., Feb. 28 (AP)—Eighteen men—17 of them making their first leap from an airplane—safely bailed out of a U. S. Air Force transport early today, moments before it crashed in a blinding blizzard. Only two soldiers were hurt, neither seriously.

The plane, a C-47 enroute from Westover, Mass., to its base at Tishomingo, N. D., crashed in a wooded area along the Sydney river, on the outskirts of this industrial center. It had carried 14 passengers and a crew of four.

The pilot had made 20 attempts to land through the storm at Sydney Airport, eight miles from the crash site, before he ordered everyone into parachutes.

Staff Sgt. R. Redinger, a Pennsylvanian, the only man aboard with previous jumping experience, fitted the "chutes and gave each man quick instructions for the leap.

The escape door jammed for a moment but broke loose when the men heaved against it the second time.

The jump was made at 3,000 feet.

When the last man leaped into the darkness, swirling snow and a 50-mile-an-hour wind, the plane had only three minutes to supply left.

All 18 men were found within a half-mile radius by search teams of

Revenue Bonds

Mayor Wilson announced that three bond houses will send representatives to the regular meeting of the council next Tuesday night, March 4, to open discussions with the city as to the issuance of revenue bonds covering the proposed outlay. The Mayor said the public is invited to sit in on the council's discussion next Tuesday.

Debate at last night's meeting raised the question whether there would be a city-wide referendum over issuing of the revenue bonds. While any citizen has the right to object and demand an election, it was pointed out last night that never, at least in modern times, has the city government been compelled to seek an election when making a more or less routine expenditure to maintain and improve police and reserve Army troops. Lt. Col. James A. Harrison, Grover Post, Mich., cracked several ribs in his landing on a hilltop and was carried off in a toboggan. Capt. James P. Amaro, Birmingham, Ala., twisted his knee in a rooftop landing only yards from high tension wires carrying electricity into Sydney.

The pilot, Capt. T. Koblenst, said the storm "chased us right from Westover." He said he expected to outrun the blizzard but decided to try landing at Sydney when the storm worsened.

Several times he sighted the lights of Sydney Airport but could not get the plane down through the strong winds. Then he ordered the jump.

Westover said the crewmen aboard, in addition to Koblenst, were Capt. W. L. Riley, co-pilot; Redinger and Sgt. A. Sharron. Hometown not in a radio relay available. None on the plane was from Arkansas.

Sen. Russell

Congressional delegation said Russell already has indicated willingness to make the race. A contest between him and Sen. Estes Kefauver (D the municipal power plant. Discussion brought out the fact that previous administrations have failed to make more than $200,000 in revenue bonds when making plant extensions, and it was said that last night's $309,000 proposal was actually less than some earlier outlays when taking into consideration the doubling of prices in the last 10 or 15 years.

Mayor Wilson said that while he stood by his original statement, that any commitment such as the approximately $800,000 recommended for the whole first-stage expansion confined in Burns & McDonnell's survey of the local plant should be checked up to the people in a referendum, he felt that the reduction of the proposed outlay to only a little over a third of that amount brought it down to a more or less routine matter.

There was discussion about engineering and their fees for the installation job. It was understood that the Burns & McDonnell firm will get about a 6 per cent commission for the management job, against which the $3,000 the city paid it for the survey report made on the plant last year will stand as a credit. Burns & McDonnell might collect, therefore, a net balance of between $14,000 and $15,000. One report last night said another nationally-known engineering firm asked a flat fee of $25,000. It was generally agreed, however, that Burns & McDonnell was a top-notch outfit, serving major installations from coast to coast.

Installation of the new 2,500 KW generator is expected to reduce production costs materially at the municipal plant, the exact figures to await a later report.

Present at last night's meeting besides the mayor and the aldermen were: E. P. O'Neil, chairman, and George W. Robinson, of the mayor's Citizens Committee; T. Carter Johnson, local traffic manager who prepared the city's comparative electric rate study; Clyde Zinn, manager of the Water & Light Plant; and A. H. Washburn of the Board of Public Affairs.

Tenn.) is in prospect in Florida.

Russell was supported by the South for the 1948 presidential nomination. But he did not join the revolt which later resulted in formation of the Southern States Rights Party.

Whether a Southern third party is formed again this year will hinge largely on who is nominated by the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

A formidable Southern block wants to defeat Mr. Truman—by a third party, if necessary. These Southerners might abandon the idea of a third party if Mr. Truman stepped out or if the GOP nominated Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Republican backers of Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O.), leading contenders for the Republican nomination, also had their eyes on the South.

Eisenhower backers from 11 Southern states conferred here yesterday and issued a statement which said:

"The south is today ready, for the first time in history, to give a majority of its electoral votes to a Republican nominee for president if that man be Eisenhower."

In a poke at Taft's southern GOP support, the Eisenhower boosters said the Southern people "are determined to throw off this old guard Republican yoke."

Scientists Trying to Clean Air

By SAM DAWSON

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—How to clean up the air is the problem. It's being tackled here today by some 230 industrialists and scientists.

And if they come up with an answer it will be a godsend to innumerable housewives who are slaves of the dustcloth and the cleaning rag—and to innumerable sufferers from respiratory infections, which include almost everyone some time or other.

The Manufacturing Chemists Association is tackling the problem at the moment. But almost everyone who starts a fire, in or out of business, or who stirs up the dry soil in the more open spaces, is involved in a way. The chemists report progress is being made with industry using millions of dollars to abate pollution.

The problem has two facets: the responsibility of industry to halt or abate the pollution of the community's air, and the need of industry to protect the health of those working in its mills and factories.

Mrs. Truman Hill, Mrs. Carl Martin, and one new member, Mrs. Milam Green. Ten members answered the roll call.

The March meeting will be with Mrs. Clem Ball and is an all-day work session. A pot luck dinner will be served.

The problem has two facets: the both as a sufferer from pollution and also as the one who ultimately pays for the equipment used to prevent industrial air pollution—since equipment cost affects the price of goods to the consumer.

Modern ways to tackling air pollution are pointed out by Dr. Hantel P. Mungler of the Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, Ohio. He tells the chemists' conference today about them as they apply not only to industrial plants but to railroads, public buildings, incinerators and commercial boiler plants.

Three principal types of air contamination are heavy dirt, fine particles and noxious gases. At Battelle, Dr. Mungler says they've just developed a "directional dirtfall collector" that not only tells how much dirt falls but from which direction it comes.

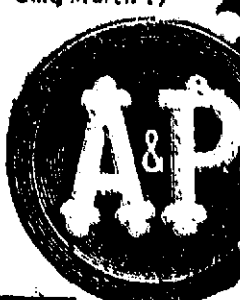

They're adding a new directional wind-measuring meter to tell how many hours the wind blows from different directions. Thus the culprit can be tracked down, or induced to operate when the wind normally blows another way.

In the design stages in a meter for measuring and recording the concentration of fine particles in the air. It is expected to distinguish between black or tarry particles and light-colored ones, similar to fly ash.

"The newer techniques make possible the study of the concentration of air contaminants at various altitudes as well as at ground level," Dr. Mungler says. "Far-sighted company officials can study meteorological conditions above a new plant site before the shovel starts excavating for the building foundations."

DEAD WEIGHT

CHAPTER THIRTY
THE WANTED order on Hunt Brin had gone out hours ago. The chances were that Brin already knew he was wanted. That meant the case was going into the stretch. Liddell grinned glumly, wondering if he'd live long enough to see it come in under the wire.
Bryant Park across the street was almost dark. Liddell had failed to put on the lights in the office, sat in semi-darkness, staring out onto the city below.
The phone started to jangle impatiently on the desk behind him. Liddell let it ring three times, picked it up.
The voice on the other end was low, unidentifiable. "Liddell?"
"That's right. Where are you, Brin?"
There was a slight pause. "So you were expecting me to call, eh? Well, you won't be disappointed, peeper. I'm coming for you."
Liddell nodded. That's what I'm waiting for. Now maybe we can have that talk I suggested this afternoon.
"I hear it's tough to do any talking with a hole in your head. You think I'm standing still for this frame?"
Liddell laughed into the mouthpiece. "That's real smart. Have me bumped off. That'll put you in the soup for real. Get smart. Let's deal."
"What've you got to deal with, peeper?"
Liddell shrugged. "Your hide. I'm the only one that knows how you were framed with my gun. I could keep you out of the hot seat."
The voice on the other end became hesitant. "Go on."
"You tell me what I want to know and I'll take you off the hook on the gun. If anything happens to me, there's nothing that can keep you from frying," Liddell chuckled. "You may not know it, but you've got a pretty big stake in me. You'd better start hoping I don't even catch cold."
"How do I know I can trust you?" The metallic voice was undecided. "How do I know this isn't another fast one like the gun?"
"I want to see Goldy. I'm not interested in putting you on the spot." He could hear the heavy breathing of the man on the other end of the phone. "Why cover for somebody else? Sure, by holding out on me, you'll be a hero to them—a well cooked hero. Well?"
"You know Marty's in the Village?"
"I can find it."
"Meet me there in an hour. Come."

Alone and don't try anything. They're getting set to tag me for a killing I didn't do. Cross me and I'll give them a good reason."
The receiver clicked in his ear. Liddell returned it to his desk. He checked his watch, walked over to the cupboard against the wall, selected a snub nosed .38 from his arsenal, slid it into his jacket pocket.
The neon sign drenched the sidewalk with a dull red glow. It flickered stultily in the drizzle, announced to the public "Marty's Place." The door was three steps up from Waverly Place, opened into a small vestibule that had been converted into a check room. A blond presided over the coats hanging on the wall.
Johnny Liddell walked through into a huge room that served as a combination barroom and a dance floor. The lights were low, orange colored, spilled deep shadows all over the place. A small bar was set against the far wall, was empty except for two Marines and a heavy set man.
Liddell ambled over, leaned on the bar. The bartender was heavy, fleshy.
"Bourbon and water," Liddell told him.
The bartender bared discolored teeth in what passed for a smile. "Ain't seen you around here before. Looking for a somebody special?"
"Yeah, friend. I'm looking for somebody special. I'll call you when I need you."
Liddell leaned on the bar. He turned at a touch on his elbow. It was a thin young man with long, wavy black hair. He was wearing a powder blue suit and a red tie.
"Are you Liddell?" he asked.
Liddell nodded, looked the boy over insolently.
"Will you come with me?" he requested, turned on his heel, led the way through the welter of tables.
Liddell waited until his guide was halfway across the room, followed slowly. At the far end of the room a disguised stairway led to an upper floor. At the top of the stairs, there was a long hallway with a row of closed doors. Voices, the shuffling of cards, the rattle of dice, were faintly discernible.
The young chap led the way down the hall to a closed door, knocked. "It's I," he called.
After a moment, a key scraped in the lock, the door opened a crack, then as though the viewer was satisfied, the door swung open.

wide. Tim Brin's bodyguard glared at Liddell. "Come in, peeper." Inside the room, Hunt Brin sat, taking short, nervous puffs out of a cigar.
Liddell stepped into the room, nodded to Brin. The door swung shut behind him. "Get your tough boy out of here, Brin, or we don't talk," Liddell told him.
Tim's voice grunted in his ear from behind. "You're in no spot to be handing out orders, Liddell. Besides, you and me have a little deal to finish up."
Liddell turned negligently. "We can have our dance some other time, Junior. Right now, we're busy."
The bodyguard's lips flattened back over his teeth. "You asked for it, peeper!" His hand flashed to his pocket, came up with a switch knife. "We'll see how tough you really are."
"Cut it out, Tim," Hunt Brin's voice lashed out like a whip. "Cut it out or I'll let you have it."
The rage drained out of Tim's face, to be replaced by shock. Liddell turned to see a .38 in Brin's hand aimed at the bodyguard's middle.
"You crazy, Hunt? This is Tim. You wouldn't?"
The gun muzzle never wavered. "I told you this guy can't be hurt. He's got to get me off the hook on the murder rap. If it's going to be you or me, Tim, don't start reading any continued stories." He waved the gun contemptuously. "You better wait outside."
Tim hesitated, hoppedscotched his eyes from Brin to Liddell and back. "Okay, Hunt. You're the boss." He returned the knife to a jacket pocket, opened the door, stalked out.
"You can turn around now, Liddell," Brin growled. He still held the gun. "You can push your luck too far. Some day you're going to push it too far."
"That'll be tough on you, chum," Liddell grinned. "Tougher than on me."
Brin's face went white under its tan. He made a half hearted attempt at the lazy smile, gave it up as a bad job. "You've got access back to back, probably," he conceded. "But take the advice of a professional gambler. Don't even push too hard on one pair."
Liddell nodded, found an armchair, dropped into it. "I've done a little gambling in my time, too. I know a few rules of my own. Such as never bluff when there's no limit on table stakes."

Make sure you get the NATCHEL kind!

—because NATURAL Chilean Nitrate contains beneficial sodium PLUS minor plant food elements.

- Nitrate Nitrogen
- All the nitrogen in Natural Chilean Nitrate is fast-acting nitrate. Dissolves in normal soil moisture... is completely available to the crop. Nitrogen increases yield and improves quality of food and feed crops... nitrate of soda furnishes more nitrate nitrogen than any other alkaline nitrate.
- Sodium — Improves crop health and vigor

Natural Chilean Nitrate is rich in sodium — contains 26% of this element (equivalent to 35% sodium oxide). Sodium can act like potash — may partially substitute for it in potash-deficient soil. By itself, sodium increases the availability of applied phosphate... tends to have a "sweetening" effect on the soil.

- Rich in minor plant food elements

Natural traces of other elements are found in Chilean Nitrate. These include iodine, manganese, copper, zinc, boron, magnesium, calcium, iron and sulphur. In small quantities, these elements are essential to proper plant or animal nutrition.

- Free-flowing pellet form

Chilean Nitrate can be applied in any standard distributor. For larger yields and top-quality crops, order Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda — proved by more than 100 years of experience.

Special U. S. Jury Is Dismissed

Los Angeles, Feb. 28 (AP) — A special federal grand jury investigating organized crime in Southern California has been dismissed by U. S. Judge Leon R. Yankwich on the ground it was not legally constituted.
The special jury, formerly the regular grand jury, was discharged last month by Judge Yankwich but was recalled by U. S. Atty. Walter S. Bins to hear further testimony in Atty. Gen. McGrath's nationwide crime probe.
Judge Yankwich said yesterday the jury was merely a "body of 23 citizens" and added that if Atty. Bins wants a special grand jury "he may apply to me and I will

impanel one."
Judge Yankwich criticized the special jury for issuing a statement to the press in which it asked for legislation, including the death penalty, if necessary, to halt the narcotics traffic. The jury suggested high bail for all narcotics cases. Addressing the new federal grand jury, impaneled last month, the judge said:
"In 7 years of the federal bench I know of no other occasion when a federal grand jury made a statement to the press regarding bail or other matters."
"If you attempt, as has been done elsewhere, to conduct a campaign in the newspapers, you are liable to prosecution. So in the future you will report to me only. Do not undertake to be a Kefauver committee."
The majority of television stations are in the states north of the Ohio River and extending from the Atlantic to the Western plain area.

MAKE-UP WON'T HIDE CALENDAR LOOK

All this scientific way may avoid showing monthly "nerves". All the make-up in the world can't take that drawn, nervous look out of your eyes each month. But here's a modern way that has helped many women and is helping you. It's CARDUI. It's the only medicine that helps build strength and resistance each month—so, after a time, many women feel no monthly "nerves". Look, feel, your normal, happy self. Ask your dealer for CARDUI. (Say: "card-pu-yee").

CHAPTER THIRTY

THE WANTED order on Hunt Brin had gone out hours ago. The chances were that Brin already knew he was wanted. That meant the case was going into the stretch. Liddell grinned grimly, wondering if he'd live long enough to see it come in under the wire.

Bryant Park across the street was almost dark. Liddell had failed to put on the lights in the office, sat in semi-darkness, staring out onto the city below.

The phone started to jangle impatiently on the desk behind him. Liddell let it ring three times, picked it up.

The voice on the other end was low, unidentified. "Liddell?"

"That's right. Where are you, Brin?"

"There was a slight pause. 'So you were expecting me to call, eh? Well, you won't be disappointed, peeper. I'm coming for you.'"

Liddell nodded. "That's what I'm waiting for. Now maybe we can have that talk I suggested this afternoon."

"I hear it's tough to do any talking with a hole in your head. You think I'm standing still for this frame?"

Liddell laughed into the mouthpiece. "That's real smart. Have me bumped off. That'll put you in the soup for real. Get smart. Let's deal."

"What've you got to deal with, peeper?"

The voice on the other end became hesitant. "Go on."

"You tell me what I want to know and I'll take you off the hook on the gun. If anything happens to me, there's nothing that can keep you from trying. Liddell chuckled. 'You may not know it, but you've got a pretty big stake in me. You'd better start hoping I don't even catch cold.'"

"How do I know I can trust you?" The metallic voice was undecided. "How do I know this isn't another fast one like the gun?"

"I want to see Goldy. I'm not interested in putting you on the spot." He could hear the heavy breathing of the man on the other end of the phone. "Why cover for somebody else? Sure, by holding out on me, you'll be a hero to them—a well cooked hero. Well?"

"You know Marty's in the Village?"

"I can find it."

"Meet me there in an hour. Come."

alone and don't try anything. They're getting set to tag me for a killing I didn't do. Cross me and I'll give them a good reason."

The receiver clicked in his ear. Liddell returned it to his desk. He checked his watch, walked over to the cupboard against the wall, selected a snub nosed .38 from his arsenal, slid it into his jacket pocket.

The neon sign drenched the sidewalk with a dull red glow. It flickered fitfully in the drizzle, announced to the public "Marty's Place." The door was three steps up from Waverly Place, opened into a small vestibule that had been converted into a check room.

A blond presided over the coats hanging on the wall.

Johnny Liddell walked through into a huge room that served as a combination barroom and a dance floor. The lights were low, orange colored, shed deep shadows all over the place. A small bar was set against the far wall, was empty except for two Marines and a heavy set man.

Liddell ambled over, leaned on the bar. The bartender was heavy, fleshy.

"Bourbon and water," Liddell told him.

The bartender bared discolored teeth in what passed for a smile. "Ain't seen you around here before. Looking for some body special?"

Liddell leaned on the bar. He turned at a touch on his elbow. It was a thin young man with long, wavy black hair. He was wearing a powder blue suit and a red tie.

"Are you Liddell?" he asked.

Liddell nodded, looked the boy over insolently.

"Will you come with me?" he requested, turned on his heel, led the way through the welter of tables.

Liddell waited until his guide was halfway across the room, followed slowly. At the far end of the room a disguised stairway led to an upper floor. At the top of the stairs, there was a long hallway with a row of closed doors. Voices, the shuffling of cards, the rattle of dice, were faintly discernible.

The young chap led the way down the hall to a closed door, knocked. "It's I," he called.

After a moment, a key scraped in the lock, the door opened a crack, then as though the viewer was satisfied, the door swung open.

Brother of Movie Actor Succumbs

Little Rock, Feb. 21 (AP)—Ernest L. Ates Sr., a brother of the movie's stuttering comedian, Roscoe Ates, died here yesterday.

Ates, 62, was a railroad locomotive engineer. He was a native of Grengre, Miss.

Survivors include his widow; a son, M-Sgt. Ernest L. Ates Jr., of Camp Gordon, Ga.; a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Petersen of Seat Pleasant, Md.; another brother, wide. Tim, Brin's bodyguard, glared at Liddell. "Come in, peeper." Inside the room, Hunt Brin sat, taking short, nervous puffs out of a cigarette.

Liddell stepped into the room, nodded to Brin. The door swung shut behind him. "Get your tough boy out of here, Brin, or we don't talk," Liddell told him.

Tim's voice grated in his ear from behind. "You're in no spot to be handing out orders, Liddell. Besides, you and me have a little deal to finish up."

Liddell turned negligently. "We can have our dance some other time, Junior. Right now, we're busy."

The bodyguard's lips flattened back over his teeth. "You asked for it, peeper!" His hand flashed to his pocket, came up with a switch knife. "We'll see how tough you really are."

"Cut it out, Tim," Hunt Brin's voice issued out like a whip. "Cut it out or I'll let you have it."

The rag drained out of Tim's face, to be replaced by shock. Liddell turned to see a .38 in Brin's hand aimed at the bodyguard's middle.

"You crazy, Hunt? This is Tim. You wouldn't?"

The gun muzzle never wavered. "I told you this guy can't be hurt. He's got to get me off the hook on the murder rap. If it's going to be you or me, Tim, don't start reading any continued stories." He waved the gun contemptuously. "You better wait outside."

Tim hesitated, nopscothed his eyes from Brin to Liddell and back. "Okay, Hunt. You're the boss." He returned the knife to a jacket pocket, opened the door, stalked out.

"You can turn around now, Liddell," Brin growled. He still held the gun. "You can push your luck too far. Some day you're going to push it too far."

"That'll be tough on you, chum," Liddell grinned. "Tougher than on me."

Brin's face went white under its tan. He made a half hearted attempt at the lazy smile, gave it up as a bad job. "You've got access back to back, probably," he conceded. "But take the advice of a professional gambler. Don't ever push too hard on one pair."

Liddell nodded, found an armchair, dropped into it. "I've done a little gambling in my time, too. I know a few rules of my own. Such as never bluff when there's no limit on table stakes."

Special U. S. Jury Is Dismissed

Los Angeles, Feb. 28 (AP)—A special federal grand jury investigating organized crime in Southern California has been dismissed by U. S. Judge Leon R. Yankwich on the ground it was not legally constituted.

The special jury, formerly the regular grand jury, was discharged last month by Judge Yankwich but was recalled by U. S. Atty. Walter S. Bins to hear further testimony in Atty. Gen. McGrath's nationwide crime probe.

Judge Yankwich said yesterday the jury was merely a "body of 23 citizens" and added that if Atty. Bins wants a special grand jury, "he may apply to me and I will

impanel one."

Judge Yankwich criticized the special jury for issuing a statement to the press in which it asked for legislation, including the death penalty, if necessary, to halt the narcotics traffic. The jury suggested high bail for all narcotics cases. Addressing the new federal grand jury, impaneled last month, the judge said:

"In 7 years of the federal bench I know of no other occasion when a federal grand jury made a statement to the press regarding bail or other matters."

"If you attempt, as has been done elsewhere, to conduct a campaign in the newspapers, you are liable to prosecution. So in the future you will report to me only. Do not undertake to be a Kefauver committee."

The majority of television stations are in the states north of the Ohio River and extending from the Atlantic to the Western plain area.

- Nitrate Nitrogen
All the nitrogen in Natural Chilean Nitrate is fast-acting nitrate. Dissolves in normal soil moisture... is completely available to the crop. Nitrogen increases yield and improves quality of food and feed crops... nitrate of soda furnishes more nitrate nitrogen than any other alkaline nitrate.
- Sodium—improves crop health and vigor
Natural Chilean Nitrate is rich in sodium—contains 26% of this element (equivalent to 35% sodium oxide). Sodium can act like potash—may partially substitute for it in potash-deficient soil. By itself, sodium increases the availability of
- applied phosphate... tends to have a "sweetening" effect on the soil.
- Rich in minor plant food elements
Natural traces of other elements are found in Chilean Nitrate. These include iodine, manganese, copper, zinc, boron, magnesium, calcium, iron and sulphur. In small quantities, these elements are essential to proper plant or animal nutrition.
- Free-flowing pellet form
Chilean Nitrate can be applied in any standard distributor. For larger yields and top-quality crops, order Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda—proved by more than 100 years of experience.
